

Help Someone who has Temporomandibular Joint Pain!

Your jaw joint—or temporomandibular joint—gets its name from the two bones that form the hinge-like joint: the temporal bone of your skull and the mandible.

When an imbalance occurs, TMJ disorder can cause headaches, ringing in your ear, face pain, and pain across your neck and shoulders. Popping and clicking of the TMJ while opening your mouth or chewing indicates that your TMJ is not functioning properly. TMJ disorder can be corrected by balancing the jaw's muscular activity with Chiropractic.
